TEACHING METHODS

A variety of research-informed teaching and learning strategies will be used. The module is designed to place participants at the centre of the learning process. The lectures and workshops will focus on specific issues. Each lecture and workshop is designed to provide an overview of issues and debates, supported with sufficient background information and analysis necessary to facilitate informed discussion and both independent and creative learning. Participants are encouraged to participate actively and are required to prepare for each class. Discussion topics as well as reading lists and appropriate materials (legislation, case law) will be distributed to students in advance and the module will be supported through the virtual learning environment on E-Learn.
