

UCLAN CYPRUS WEBSITE AND COOKIES POLICY

Here at the University of Central Lancashire, Cyprus (UCLan Cyprus) we take your privacy very seriously and are fully committed to safeguarding and protecting the privacy of our website users. By accessing and using our websites or other services, without changing your internet settings, we will assume you are happy to accept our cookie policy as outlined below.

This policy explains how we collect, use and handle information that you provide through your use of the UCLan Cyprus website. We utilise this data to respond to your enquiries, monitor use of our systems, and to improve your experience of our website.

All personal data collected and used by UCLan Cyprus is handled in compliance with current data protection legislation. If you would like more detailed information relating to our Data Protection Policy, your privacy or your rights, or who to contact if you have any concerns about the use of your data, please visit our Data Protection Policy.

UCLan Cyprus' Data Protection Officer advises the University how to comply with data protection legislation and manages and coordinates requests made under the GDPR and associated legislation. You can contact the Data Protection Officer at DPO@uclancyprus.ac.cy.

This policy is reviewed on a regular basis and any changes will be updated accordingly on this page. This page was last updated in June 2020.

INTRODUCTION TO COOKIES

In addition to the collection, retention and use of directly provided personal information, the University utilises 'cookies' to store and retrieve anonymous data during each visit to the website.

It is important for you to understand what cookies are, what we use cookies for, and how to disable them if you do not wish for them to be used whilst visiting this site.

Please note we are currently developing our cookie tools to allow web users to easily change their cookie settings. Please check back for updates, which will appear in due course.

When you access our website or officially recognised microsites, we use cookies to give you the best possible experience on our website and help improve our services to you. For example, we may use cookies to:

- Make the website work properly and enable you to use the services we provide.
- Collect data on how visitors use our websites so that we can improve our site and functionality and provide an enjoyable experience.
- Remember your preferences, making the site easier and more intuitive for you.
- Target or advertise our other services you may be interested in, through third party cookies.

WHAT ARE COOKIES?

A cookie is a small text file that is placed on your computer or device by websites that you visit. Cookies are widely used in order to enhance websites, providing a more tailored and personal experience whilst permitting websites to review and analyse anonymous information about visitors (e.g., time spent on particular pages). Some of these cookies are presented by us, some of the cookies are presented by third-parties such as Google, YouTube, Facebook and Twitter. A cookie

UCLAN CYPRUS WEBSITE AND COOKIES POLICY

Here at the University of Central Lancashire, Cyprus (UCLan Cyprus) we take your privacy very seriously and are fully committed to safeguarding and protecting the privacy of our website users. By accessing and using our websites or other services, without changing your internet settings, we will assume you are happy to accept our cookie policy as outlined below.

This policy explains how we collect, use and handle information that you provide through your use of the UCLan Cyprus website. We utilise this data to respond to your enquiries, monitor use of our systems, and to improve your experience of our website.

All personal data collected and used by UCLan Cyprus is handled in compliance with current data protection legislation. If you would like more detailed information relating to our Data Protection Policy, your privacy or your rights, or who to contact if you have any concerns about the use of your data, please visit our Data Protection Policy.

UCLan Cyprus' Data Protection Officer advises the University how to comply with data protection legislation and manages and coordinates requests made under the GDPR and associated legislation. You can contact the Data Protection Officer at DPO@uclancyprus.ac.cy.

This policy is reviewed on a regular basis and any changes will be updated accordingly on this page. This page was last updated in June 2020.

INTRODUCTION TO COOKIES

In addition to the collection, retention and use of directly provided personal information, the University utilises 'cookies' to store and retrieve anonymous data during each visit to the website.

It is important for you to understand what cookies are, what we use cookies for, and how to disable them if you do not wish for them to be used whilst visiting this site.

Please note we are currently developing our cookie tools to allow web users to easily change their cookie settings. Please check back for updates, which will appear in due course.

When you access our website or officially recognised microsites, we use cookies to give you the best possible experience on our website and help improve our services to you. For example, we may use cookies to:

- Make the website work properly and enable you to use the services we provide.
- Collect data on how visitors use our websites so that we can improve our site and functionality and provide an enjoyable experience.
- Remember your preferences, making the site easier and more intuitive for you.
- Target or advertise our other services you may be interested in, through third party cookies.

WHAT ARE COOKIES?

A cookie is a small text file that is placed on your computer or device by websites that you visit. Cookies are widely used in order to enhance websites, providing a more tailored and personal experience whilst permitting websites to review and analyse anonymous information about visitors (e.g., time spent on particular pages). Some of these cookies are presented by us, some of the cookies are presented by third-parties such as Google, YouTube, Facebook and Twitter. A cookie

UCLAN CYPRUS WEBSITE AND COOKIES POLICY

Here at the University of Central Lancashire, Cyprus (UCLan Cyprus) we take your privacy very seriously and are fully committed to safeguarding and protecting the privacy of our website users. By accessing and using our websites or other services, without changing your internet settings, we will assume you are happy to accept our cookie policy as outlined below.

This policy explains how we collect, use and handle information that you provide through your use of the UCLan Cyprus website. We utilise this data to respond to your enquiries, monitor use of our systems, and to improve your experience of our website.

All personal data collected and used by UCLan Cyprus is handled in compliance with current data protection legislation. If you would like more detailed information relating to our Data Protection Policy, your privacy or your rights, or who to contact if you have any concerns about the use of your data, please visit our Data Protection Policy.

UCLan Cyprus' Data Protection Officer advises the University how to comply with data protection legislation and manages and coordinates requests made under the GDPR and associated legislation. You can contact the Data Protection Officer at DPO@uclancyprus.ac.cy.

This policy is reviewed on a regular basis and any changes will be updated accordingly on this page. This page was last updated in June 2020.

INTRODUCTION TO COOKIES

In addition to the collection, retention and use of directly provided personal information, the University utilises 'cookies' to store and retrieve anonymous data during each visit to the website.

It is important for you to understand what cookies are, what we use cookies for, and how to disable them if you do not wish for them to be used whilst visiting this site.

Please note we are currently developing our cookie tools to allow web users to easily change their cookie settings. Please check back for updates, which will appear in due course.

When you access our website or officially recognised microsites, we use cookies to give you the best possible experience on our website and help improve our services to you. For example, we may use cookies to:

- Make the website work properly and enable you to use the services we provide.
- Collect data on how visitors use our websites so that we can improve our site and functionality and provide an enjoyable experience.
- Remember your preferences, making the site easier and more intuitive for you.
- Target or advertise our other services you may be interested in, through third party cookies.

WHAT ARE COOKIES?

A cookie is a small text file that is placed on your computer or device by websites that you visit. Cookies are widely used in order to enhance websites, providing a more tailored and personal experience whilst permitting websites to review and analyse anonymous information about visitors (e.g., time spent on particular pages). Some of these cookies are presented by us, some of the cookies are presented by third-parties such as Google, YouTube, Facebook and Twitter. A cookie

UCLAN CYPRUS WEBSITE AND COOKIES POLICY

Here at the University of Central Lancashire, Cyprus (UCLan Cyprus) we take your privacy very seriously and are fully committed to safeguarding and protecting the privacy of our website users. By accessing and using our websites or other services, without changing your internet settings, we will assume you are happy to accept our cookie policy as outlined below.

This policy explains how we collect, use and handle information that you provide through your use of the UCLan Cyprus website. We utilise this data to respond to your enquiries, monitor use of our systems, and to improve your experience of our website.

All personal data collected and used by UCLan Cyprus is handled in compliance with current data protection legislation. If you would like more detailed information relating to our Data Protection Policy, your privacy or your rights, or who to contact if you have any concerns about the use of your data, please visit our Data Protection Policy.

UCLan Cyprus' Data Protection Officer advises the University how to comply with data protection legislation and manages and coordinates requests made under the GDPR and associated legislation. You can contact the Data Protection Officer at DPO@uclancyprus.ac.cy.

This policy is reviewed on a regular basis and any changes will be updated accordingly on this page. This page was last updated in June 2020.

INTRODUCTION TO COOKIES

In addition to the collection, retention and use of directly provided personal information, the University utilises 'cookies' to store and retrieve anonymous data during each visit to the website.

It is important for you to understand what cookies are, what we use cookies for, and how to disable them if you do not wish for them to be used whilst visiting this site.

Please note we are currently developing our cookie tools to allow web users to easily change their cookie settings. Please check back for updates, which will appear in due course.

When you access our website or officially recognised microsites, we use cookies to give you the best possible experience on our website and help improve our services to you. For example, we may use cookies to:

- Make the website work properly and enable you to use the services we provide.
- Collect data on how visitors use our websites so that we can improve our site and functionality and provide an enjoyable experience.
- Remember your preferences, making the site easier and more intuitive for you.
- Target or advertise our other services you may be interested in, through third party cookies.

WHAT ARE COOKIES?

A cookie is a small text file that is placed on your computer or device by websites that you visit. Cookies are widely used in order to enhance websites, providing a more tailored and personal experience whilst permitting websites to review and analyse anonymous information about visitors (e.g., time spent on particular pages). Some of these cookies are presented by us, some of the cookies are presented by third-parties such as Google, YouTube, Facebook and Twitter. A cookie